Divisional CFO

BENEFITS

- Independent IT governance and advice
- Flexible access to senior resources

UK Division of a global food ingredients group

The client was undergoing significant change in how it delivered IT services, including a potential re-organisation of the IT function.

Its Head of Information Systems was transferring to another group company and there was an immediate need to transition its main UK IT operations into a shared infrastructure services model.

The divisional CFO wished to have an experienced leader manage that transition whilst he and the Group IT Director addressed the future IT organisation design.

Itica

Itica provided a senior IT leader with Director-level experience to manage the transition, which lasted for a period of nine months.

He made flexible use of Itica’s IT strategy, governance, project management, technical and commercial experts to ensure a successful outcome, providing a consistent approach across all the activities that were needed.

Further aid was provided for the divisional CFO by representing him on the plc IT steering group. Upon completion of the assignment, a quick and efficient handover was made to the new Head of IT.

The scope of the role was agreed with the client at the start of the assignment and the outputs measured against it on a regular basis. Itica provided stable IT leadership in a period of significant change.

Our client is a subsidiary of a £5bn FTSE100 company with diverse interests and global activities spanning multiple industry sectors. The client has multiple subsidiaries that operate independently in many different global locations.
